Richard Hoagland New Police Judge of Carmel

In their meeting Wednesday night, members of the Carmel city council accepted "with deep regret" the resignation of Alfred Fraser as city judge, deputy tax and deputy license collector and superintendent of streets.

At the same time they appointed Richard Hoagland to the office of city judge, deputy tax and deputy license collector at a salary of $175 a month. George Askew, who has been serving as foreman of the street department, was made street superintendent at the same figure.

The resignation came in the form of a letter addressed to the council by Fraser, who has been in ill health for some time.

The resignation was accepted with regrets that were very genuine. The mayor was instructed to prepare a letter to the former judge, expressing the disappointment of the council over his retirement and their appreciation of his loyal and efficient service.

Meanwhile the newly appointed officials hold office at the pleasure of the council. In the event of Frazer's early recovery, it is believed, he may be reappointed to the position he formerly held.

Fraser is reported to be considerably improved in health since his breakdown but unable to take up active work at the moment. His speedy recovery is anticipated.

The meeting was further marked by the reading of two ordinances, one forbidding the sale, purchase and shooting of fireworks in the city limits except in case of public celebrations handled by the fire chief; the other making it a misdemeanor to "ride, lead, drive or permit any horse, mule or donkey" on Carmel Beach, as presence of these animals there is regarded as dangerous to public peace and safety.

After a long debate on legal technicalities, bids of the Pine Cone and Carmelite for city printing were rejected and will be called again.

With August bills totalling $3,993.32, a balance of $8,494.93 is reported in the treasury.

The resignation of Mrs. Dorothea M. Bain as a member of the municipal advisory board was accepted with regret. Mrs. Bain finds it impossible to attend meetings.

Charles Cooper, Pianist, Next At Wednesday Morning Concert

An unusual treat is in store for Carmelites at the next of the Wednesday Morning Recitals which takes place on August thirteenth. For none other than the noted pianist, Charles Cooper, will play for us one of the most notable piano programs that has ever been presented in Carmel.

Charles Cooper, who has been having unusual success as a pianist in the East during the past two seasons, is regarded by the foremost critics there as one of the outstanding pianists before the public today. When Mr. Cooper appeared in recital this past winter at the Congregational Club in Washington, D. C., Rimsky-Korsakov, a niece of Tschaikowsky, who had known Anton Rubenstein intimately in Russia, enthusiastically remarked after the recital that Mr. Cooper's playing bore a striking resemblance to the art of the great Russian pianist.

Mr. Cooper played in Carmtl some nine years ago. That is the only time he has played on the Pacific Coast in twenty years, although he is a San Franciscan by birth. When he played in Carmel he completely won his audience, and the writer of this article shall never forget his splendid rendition of a Chopin Sonata upon that occasion.

Mr. Cooper has, in the past few years, been connected with the Peabody Institute of Music in Baltimore. This in itself is sufficient to stamp him as one of the finest of American pianists. But he is more than that. He is generally conceded to be one of the most vivid and commanding personalities of the concert stage today, whose art has matured and reached a high point of development. Gifted with a keen musical perception, an excellent technique, and a stirring emotional touch, this eminent pianist endows any composition he plays with a vitality rhythmic and individual interpretation.

Aside from his artistry, Mr. Cooper has many warm friends is Carmel, and there should not be a vacant seat in the house when he plays the following program:

J. HAYDN, Variations in F. minor.

GLUCK-FRIEDMAN, Ballet des Ombres Heureuses.

A SCARLATTI, Sonata in A major.

J. BRAHMS, Sonata in F minor, op. 5.

Allegro maestoso
Andante espressivo
Scherzo: allegro energico

F. CHOPIN, Nocturne in D flat major

Waltz in A flat major.
Etude in C minor. Op. 25, No. 12.

C. DEBUSSY, Reflets dans L'Eau.

J. STRAUSS - SCHULTZ - ELVER, Concert Arabesques on themes of "By The Beautiful Blue Danube."

Carmelites who attended the Monterey breakwater celebration last Monday evening included Mr. and Mrs. Gregory Illanes, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Abernethy, W. L. Overstreet, Fritz Wurzmann and John B. Jordan.

City Advisory Committee Considers Annexation

A "united Carmel" which would embrace the present town and Carmel Woods, the Point, Hatton Fields, La Loma and the Walker sub-division, is to be considered by the municipal advisory board of 25.

The proposal to consolidate the town and the territory immediately adjacent was made by Preston W. Search, chairman of the board, at its meeting in the city hall last Monday night. Before a recommendation on the matter goes to the city council, the advisory board is expected to make a careful, deliberate study of the whole question.

It is pointed out, meanwhile, that the board is a particularly appropriate body for the study. inasmuch as its membership includes not only residents within the city limits of Carmel but others who live in the territory whose consolidation with Carmel has been proposed.

As Search observed Monday, there is no hurry. He even intimated that six months might well be spent in study.

Search presented his resolution in favor of consolidation at the end of a meeting that had been called originally to reopen the M. J. Murphy question. His action brings a long-anticipated issue directly before the people for the first time.

His resolution also calls on the council and advisory board "to take the lead in the initiative steps necessary to the early vote of the peoples whose consent is essential" to consolidation.

There was no debate on the Search resolution at the time. That will follow in future meetings of the advisory board.

Search himself will not be present during consideration of his resolution. As he told the board Monday night, he leaves shortly for an extended trip in the east and will not return until the middle of winter.

The Search resolution reads as follows:

Whereas, the civic interests of Carmel and its related additions are all one, the same good name covering mother and children alike, with the same beauty, safety and reputation to be observed; and,

Whereas, the time is specially opportune for considering our mutual advantages and responsibilities as involved in centralized cooperative government; fire and police protection; sewage and general health; the enforcement of law; partnership and privileges in libraries, parks, roads of mutual transportations and parkings; the safety of school children and our homes; the patrol and guardianship of our beaches and coasts; the protection of our hospitals; regulation of speed limits and franchises to be granted water, gas and wiring companies; ordinances against objectionable industries and the use of fire arms; the elimination of uncongenial elements; the just participation in all matters pertaining to the commonwealth's good and in general and responsible control:

Therefore, be it resolved that it is the sense and recommendation of the Carmel Municipal Advisory Board, representing as it does all the territories concerned, that the City of Carmel and the additions known as The Point, Hatton Fields, Carmel Woods, La Loma and the Walker Subdivision, should consolidate in one United Carmel; and that the City Council, together with this Advisory Board, should lead in the initiative steps necessary to the early vote of the peoples whose consent is essential to such authorization.

Board members present were the following: Everett Littlefield, Dr. R. A. Kocher, Fred Leidig, Leslie Doulton, Henry F. Dickinson, Hugh Comstock, Miss Claribel Haydock, Mrs. Daisy Bostick, Mrs. Elizabeth Schuyler, Jo Mora, Fred Bechdolt, Mrs. Mary Dummage, Mrs. Vera Peck Millis, Preston W. Search and Miss Hazel Watrous, the latter the newly elected secretary.

FATHER MESTRES PASSES AWAY

Monsignor Mestres died peacefully Wednesday morning last, after an illness of more than a year and a half.

Through a term of thirty-seven years as administrative of the San Carlos Catholic parish of Monterey, Monsignor Mestres served his parishioners, and attained national recognition through his work in restoring the historic Carmel and Monterey missions.

His name became familiar nationally during the recent presidential campaign, when it became known that it was Father Mestres who married Miss Lou Henry and Herbert Hoover in Monterey in 1899. Monsignor Mestres was born in Barcelona, Spain, October 19, 1865, of a prominent Spanish family. His father was Colonel Ramon Mestres of the Spanish army.

The young man, who was trained for the priesthood at the Jesuit university at Barcelona, first came to Los Angeles at the age of 24. He was ordained at that time for the priesthood. After serving in the southern city and later at Santa Cruz, the priest was placed in charge of Monterey mission church and Carmel mission in 1893.

In 1915 King Alfonso XIII of Spain, in recognition of Monsignor Mestres' work in restoring the missions, bestowed upon him the decoration of the Royal Order of Isabella.

Monsignor Mestres has only one surviving relative in California—a nephew, Edward Vigo Mestres, who has been a guide in the Carmel mission.

ROBERT STOWELL ILL IN SAN FRANCISCO

Robert Stowell, formerly with the Search orchestra at Del Monte and on the Pine Cone is ill with pneumonia in Letterman's general hospital in San Francisco. He has been playing with the St. Francis Hotel orchestra.

DR. BECK ILL IN MICHIGAN

Dr. J. E. Beck, now at Birmingham, Michigan, where he and his wife are visiting her relatives, is reported dangerously ill of pneumonia. Dr. Beck, a pioneer of Carmel, its first druggist and physician, has hosts of friends here.

SERRA'S INDIANS SUE FOR RIGHTS

Descendants of the indian neophytes of Fray Junipero Serra, living in Monterey county, some in the Carmel valley, others at Jolon, are plaintiffs in a suit of $12,000,000 against the United States government. The basis for action is alleged failure on the part of the government to carry out provisions of the treaty of 1851-52, following the Mexican war.

Under this pact, the Indians agreed to relinquish possession of practically all of California, that section from "the Sierras to the sea," and in exchange were to become owners of certain reservations within the state.

The United States Senate of that time did not ratify the treaties, and as the white man's rush to California came soon after, the Indian's rights were forgotten. They were the only ones who did the relinquishing.

Since becoming citizens in May, 1928, they have had their first legal right to sue the government for the value of the lands they failed to get under the treaty. The Attorney-General of the United States has ruled their right to a suit, and the Attorney-General of California will press their claims.

Fred A. Baker of the U. S. Department of the Interior, has been rounding up Indians who have the right to share in the proceeds of the suit, those who have lived in California since June 1, 1852, or their direct lineal descendants, now residing in California. He has found 170 on the Monterey peninsula, Carmel valley, San Juan Bautista and Jolon.

NEW MANSE WILL BE AN ORNAMENT

By J. M. Culbertson

It may not be generally known that the Carmel Community Church is building a new parsonage on the corner of Eleventh avenue and Lincoln street, to be known as "The Manse."

We hope to make it an ornament to Carmel, and under the able supervision of Mr. V. M. Bain, we believe it will be; but to complete it properly, we need additional funds. The contractors— builders, plumbers and carpenters— have been most generous in contributing materials and labor, for which the members of the church are most grateful, but we believe there may be some one amongst our generous minded citizens, who, knowing of our need, would be glad to make a contribution to the building fund, so that we may finish the house free of debt. Anyone desiring to help may communicate with the Rev. Mr. Grimshaw, or any member of the church.

NEW WORK BABY HAS GRAND START

Stuart Work chose a location for a home in Carmel close beside the Forest Theater so that Joan Work might not have far to go for rehearsals. Joan, born last Wednesday night at the Monterey Peninsula Hospital, ably assisted into the world of life and drama by Dr. Hugh Dormody, will have every paternal encouragement to become one of Carmel's foremost actresses. The young lady does not, of course, realize yet the brilliant future before her.

Mrs. Stuart Work (nee Doris Campbell of Piedmont) is bearing up splendidly under the burden of responsibility as the mother of a Forest Tteater star. Stuart Work, remembering his important parts in the Mikado, the Serra Pageant, and other productions, smiles broadly at the task of raising a Forest Theater child.

SAN FRANCISCO FIRM AWARDED SCHOOL BONDS

For a premium of $9,078, the $225,000 bond issue of the Monterey union high school district has been awarded to the American Security company of San Francisco.

Members of the county supervisors board awarded the issue to the San Francisco firm at a meeting held Wednesday in Salinas. The American Security company was high in a field of 15 bidders.

The $225,000 issue was voted by citizens of the high school district in a recent election. Carmel's overwhelming vote was instrumental in carrying the appropriation which will make possible needed improvement at the union high school plant in Monterey.

The bonds will bear interest at five per cent and will be redeemable over a period of 10 years.

Erection of new buildings at the plant is expected to start shortly. The new quarters, it is hoped, will be ready for occupancy by fall of 1931.

The supervisors gave its authorization to publish budgets of the various county school districts. The Monterey union high school budget was given at $173,855 and Sunset school district at $43, 190.

Olin Downes Lectures on Spanish Folk Music

By Thomas Vincent Cator

After listening to Olin Downes last Wednesday morning, I can say with emphasis that I'd gladly go out of my way a couple of hundred miles to hear him, any time. For he is one of the most spontaneous, delectable and effectual talkers who has at any time discussed musical topics publicly in this section of the hemisphere. He has personality in copious amount, and he does not deal with the external quanities of his subject, but passes up all extraneous matter and gives his hearers only the precious metal that he dug right out of bed rock. More than that—Mr. Downes makes you feel that he is vitally alive to every impression and suggestion emanating from the particular sphere of activity which he has under observation, and he has a way of making you feel and relish his own experiences as keenly as he himself has realized them.

There is absolutely nothing of the four-flusher or poseur about Olin Downes. He is a genuine article—and he presents his subject matter in a way which not alone holds your attention constantly, but makes you think, "Here is a man that was really thrilled by the things he saw and heard, and he's imparting to me the same emotions and thoughts so clearly and unaffectedly that I know I'm breathing the very air and aroma of Spain." This is perhaps a repetition of what I said before, but if the Jews can repeat in the Psalms—why shouldn't I?

Mr. Downes paved the way for his discussion of the music of Spain by taking us for a brief "Jaunt Through Spain," stressing its picturesqueness from a scenic standpoint, and the atmosphere of medievalism which still pervades its rural districts. He called to our attention the fact that he had an opportunity of travelling through only a certain number of the Spanish Provinces, but that in these it had seemed to him as though he had stepped back three or four hundred years, and he felt that the same primitiveness existed throughout the country, the only approach to anything like modern civilization—or lack of civilization—being in Madrid and one or two other large cities. And he found this so delightful that he hoped it would be a long while before the condition is changed and old traditions lost because of the encroachment of modernity, with its horror of everything being cut to a certain pattern. How heartily this writer agrees with Mr. Downes concerning this matter it would be difficult to express. For Japan and China, and many of the other strikingly colorful nations of the world, to lose their former individuality and charming originality by adopting the plain, commercial and matter-of-fact garments and ways and customs of the United States and England is one of the crying shames of this age.

Getting down to the music of Spain, Mr. Downes explained that here also he could give us insight into that of a few of the Provinces, only. The nation is too poor to afford many symphony orchestras, but it has many wonderful bands. And these bands play with a something—plus a remarkable abandon—that is in itself a force more compelling, and more insinuatingly appealing, than all the polish and exact musical refinements of our sophisticated orchestras in America and the more up-to-date European nations.

It is the folk-music of Spain which is most rich in unusual and stimulating material. According to Mr. Downes. He spoke of the many influences, including the Moorish and Arabic, which had been instrumental in molding this music into the forms and rhythms it is made up of at the present time. He said that it was as though someone had flung handfuls of seeds upon fertile soil, and beautiful flowers of all colors and forms had sprung up, and from these, new flowers had come until the whole place was fairly alive with their vividness and fragrance. In just such a way had this music evolved, and he believed that today no other country in the world is as rich in folk-music as Spain in comparison with its size.

In conclusion Mr. Downes let us hear a number of records of real unadulterated and entrancing Spanish folk-music. I should like to give something of a detailed description of this music—but lack of space forbids. The names of a few of these pieces, however, were as follows: "Seguiryas," sung by Nino Ricardo to the accompaniment of a guitar, "Penteneras," also sung by Ricardo, and she likewise sang another, "Seata." This Nino Ricardo has a voice the quality of which is almost as deep as a baritone's. "La Santa Espina," was played by eleven instruments, and oh what a wonderful thrill it possessed! The final number was "No hay quien pese." This was played by Havana negroes, and was notable for its strange rhythm.

UNIQUE SHOP OPENS

A shop that will be unique even in Carmel, "the village of unique shops" is to be opened in the new DeYoe building by Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Johonnot. The Johonnots are famous for murals, decorations, arrangement of colors in buildings and homes. Ralph is responsible for the beautiful Samarkand for the Barbara. Many homes on the Peninsula have been beautified by the Johonnots, and now they are opening a shop.

What kind of a shop? you ask. Well, it's the kind of place you drift into, not realizing, perhaps, that you are in the midst of a carefully planned "musical" color scheme whose beauty you feel, whether you analyze it or not. Also, it's the kind of shop where you make your own waffles and tea, Each table, individually decorated, will be equipped with waffle iron, and ingredients for tea.

Ralph Johonnot's murals and paintings will be on view, and their accents carried out in the decorations—much as these artists have done in homes they have decorated in Pebble Beach and elsewhere.

YOUNG FOR GOVERNOR CLUB IN ACTION

Carmel Highlands, Carmel Valley and the town of Carmel are represented on the new Young-for-Governor club formed this week on Monterey peninsula.

Among the first to join the organization were John Jordan of Carmel, Louie Wolter of Carmel Valley and Ed Tickle of Carmel Highlands Inn.

The club plans a spirited campaign in this section in behalf of Young for governor. It hopes to reach every voter and to explain to each reasons why Young is the best candidate for this county as well as for the entire state. Peninsula newspapers will also carry Young advertisements over the names of leading local citizens.

Planning Here Requires Distinctive Treatment

The planning problems for the Monterey peninsula are distinctly its own, said Gordon Whitnall, managing director of the Los Angeles planning commission at a dinner in Monterey last week Wednesday evening, and the peninsula must solve them for itself. It should not try to ape other cities or districts, but should create from its own traditions and surroundings a plan of future expansion that will be unique and distinctive.

"The Monterey peninsula must determine its own destiny," he said, "it cannot go to outsiders for help. Its people must solve their own problems. Here you have a spot unlike any place in the world, different than anything else. You have a heritage second to none, not even to New England.

"For ideal planning, development of the peninsula as it should be developed, that heritage must be preserved and the intangible things that make the peninsula different should be emphasized to a superlative degree. Build and cultivate the attractions no other place has, and make your community better and different than any other place."

In planning, Whitnall declared, economics and sociology should be considered as well as design. Up until a few years ago, he said, the geratest impediments to progress were planners' own records.

"A lot of pure bunk has gone out in the name of planning," he said. "Some has been caused by bias, some by over enthusiasm. Planners heretofore have only designed, neglecting to consider economics or sociology."

Planning, he declared, is a means to an important objective, economic improvement. To reach that objective, he said, sociology and design as well as economic principles, must be given the utmost consideration and thought.

The things that make places different from all others are sometimes desecrated in the name of progress, Whitnall said, in closing and urged that the Monterey peninsula strive to emphasize its natural advantages and traditions and not attempt to imitate large or great cities in an attempt to reach the ideal.

Whitnall was introduced by William J. Locke, secertary-manager and executive officer of the California League of Municipalities, who is accompanying the league president on his tour of the Pacific coast.

Miss Eileen Ready has returned to her home in San Francisco from a pleasant two weeks' vacation spent in Carmel at the House of River Winds.

COUNTY ZONING LAW TO BE CONSIDERED

Tonight (Friday) members of the Monterey county planning commission meet with residents of the Carmel Highlands area at Highlands Inn to discuss the proposed zoning ordinance.

One section of that ordinance, it is understood, applies directly to Carmel Highlands and the territory immediately adjoining it on the north and south.

The commission is discussing the proposed ordinance with residents in various sections of the country, in order to make any changes that are desired before the document is referred to the county supervisors for final action.

On the basis of earlier conversations between Highlands residents and the commission it is presumed that the ordinance will furnish protection for the Highlands against unwanted businesses and unsightly signs and buildings, whose presence would mar one of the beauty spots of the country.

Hot dog stands, service stations and billboards, it is expected will be excluded under terms of the ordinance.

With a Marvelous Cast Tchekov's Sea Gull Comes to Playhouse

Tonight, tomorrow and Sunday nights Carmel will enjoy its first contact with one of the Tchekov masterpieces of drama. "The Sea-gull" is the offering at Carmel Playhouse, with an exceptionally strong cast.

Broadway managers rubbed their eyes with incredulity this year when, taking stock of the theatrical situation, it was discovered that the most continuously "sold-out" houses of the New York season were those of the Jed Harris production of Tchekov's "Uncle Vanya." From all over the country similar reports have come in. "The Sea-gull," "The Cherry Orchard," "Three Sisters" and "Uncle Vanya" have swept over America. Theatre Arts Monthly humorously devoted its leading article a few months ago to "Broadway's most popular playwright, Anton Tchekov," and Eva Le Gallienne attributes the growing stability of the Civic Repertory Theatre largely to its frequent performances of the works of the great Russian.

The same group that made such a success of "The Thrip'ny Opera" last month have built up the production of "The Sea-gull" at the local playhouse. They are Edward Kuster, producing director, Morris Ankrum, stage director, and Peter Friedrichsen, in charge of settings.

In addition to Ankrum and Kuster, who play the roles of Constantin and Sorin respectively, the cast includes the following: Carolyn Anspacher, who scored a brilliant success as lead in the San Francisco production of "The Dybbuk"; Mina Quevli, who will repeat the role of Nina, which she enacted at the Tacoma Little Theatre a few months ago; Galt Bell, for many years a favorite with University and Little Theatre groups around San Francisco Bay, but who has been acting professionally in the East for the past five years; Katheryn Peck, of Stanford University and Pasadena Community Theatre; Richard Lewis, formerly of the University of California players but recently engaged in directing and acting at the State Teachers' College in San Jose; Gloria Stuart, who has come to Carmel with a splendid background of well-directed University acting; Charles McGrath, well known Carmelite, who has an excellent character role in Shamraev, pompous land ovrseer; Andre Johnstone, as the diffident schoolmaster Medvedenko; and Sallie Jaggar and Sam McMunn, in two brief but significant roles.

It is of interest that Galt Bell will play the role of Trigorin, created by Stanislavski in the Moscow Art Theatre production and re-created in New York in quite different vein, equally brilliant Jacob Ben Ami. Mr. Bell may be depended on for a sure and sincere characterization of this difficult and interesting role.

Three performances only, with curtain promptly at eight thirty.

The box office in the kiosk opposite the postoffice will be open from two to five daily. The Playhouse box-office will be opened each evening at seven o'clock.

RUDHYAR TO PLAY IN GALLERY TUESDAY

Among all the American composers of new music Rudhyar holds a unique and accorded place. For years he has been a well-known figure in New York, his "Moments," his "Paeons," and his "Granites" all having been played by the League of Composers or the International Composer's Guild, which organizations, as every one knows, give hearing each year to the most significant of the new music, such as Gieseking often playing, and such as Koussevitsky or Mengelberg conducting.

Rudhyar plays in the Denny-Watrous Gallery on Tuesday evening next, at eight-thirty o'clock, a program of Scriabine, Ruth Crawford, and Rudhyar. He will preface his recital with a brief statement of the real meaning of Scriabine's music. An earnest diciple of the great Russian mystic, doubtless there is no one in America who better represents or carries on the Scriabine contribution than Rudhyar.

A most unusual feature of the evening, and one of great interest to those who are following what is at present developing in vocal expression, is the chanting of Rudhyar. He will conclude his program with one or two chants of his own improvising which, as he feels it, express more nearly than instrumental music, the deeply serious character and sacred estacy of the type of music which he composes and which is a lineal descendent of Scriabine.

Word has been received from O. W. Bardarson that he sailed from Iceland the 26th of July and plans to be again in Carmel within the next two weeks.

POET MAYOR PRODUCES JULIUS CAESAR by Hal Garrott

Whatever you do don't make any conflicting dates for Friday and Saturday next week, August 15 and 16. You'd never forgive yourself if you missed the only poet-mayor-in-the-world's production of Shakespeare's Julius Caesar. This long heralded event commented upon by the national press, will be the most elaborate and impressive presentation of classic drama ever attempted in Carmel.

The action will not be limited to the dimensions of the wooded Forest Theater stage. It will flow out over the surrounding hillside. Campfires of opposing armies will be glimpsed in the distance. Challenges of sentries will echo from afar. The tragic life of Julius Caesar will be re-lived in a terrain suggesting the environs of ancient Rome. And don't imagine the cast will fail to live up to inspiring surroundings whose proscenium arch is the vault of the stars! The roles have been dealt out to old, experienced hands, veterans of the stage, actors whose work has been proved again and again.

Gordon Nelson who does the great role of Brutus, was one of the mainstays of the Moroni Olsen Players. His splendid voice, his poetic protrayal of Yellow Snake in the God of Gods will long be remembered in Carmel. More recently he proved his versatility as the Real Estate Man in Carmel Nights. B. Franklin Dixon, a delightful personality, who made a hit in Kuster's Thrip'ny Opera with a strong characterization of Cockney, will lend his expressive voice, excellent enunciation and his histrionic intelligence to interpreting Cassius.

Our poet mayor himself takes the part of Antony. After twenty years in Carmel stages Herbert Heron is no stranger to us as a Shakespearean performer. There is personality and fervor in his reading of the great lines that have come to be a part of his life. More than all else Shakespearean drama requires voices, and voices are Herbert Heron's hobby. Next week at the Forest Theater you will listen to words that vibrate.

James Fitzgerald, the artist, whose paintings were recently on exhibit at Del Monte, takes the part of Caesar. He is said to be as skillful on the stage as he is with the brushes. Eugene Watson, another veteran of our local stage, plays Casca, a leading conspirator. Besides experience Eugene has voice and presence. Morris Ankrum who does Marullus, needs no heralding from us. He directs Edward Kuster's Golden Bough Workshop of Play Production, and will continue active in its forthcoming presentations. Ankrum would hold his own in any cast, no matter how "professional."

The role of Dacius goes to William O'Donnell, accomplished editor of that newsy and well-edited daily, the Monterey Peninsula Herald, and Bert Heron tells me he has marked histrionic gifts. Blanche Tolmie, actress, director, playwright, can be relied upon for an eloquent portrayal of Calpurnia, Caesar's wife. Brutus' better half, Portia, is by Constance Heron who was practically brought up on the Forest Theater stage, and as a baby is said to have cut her teeth on the director's baton. She was an outstanding Carmel figure in Edwin Carew's Evangeline produced last year on Point Lobos, and recently made a hit in her old nursery, the same Forest Theater stage, as comedienne in Carmel Nights.

Herbert Pattee creates a superb stage figure of Trebonius, as does Art Mason of Metellus, Nan Thompson is an appealing Lucius. Albert Hornstein is a capable soothsayer.

We are promised able portrayals from James Darling, Ruth Marian Poor, Stuart O'Brien, Olivia Warfield, Edna Sheridan, Alex Gibson and Margaret Grant as leaders of the Roman mob. The entire cast, one of the most brilliant ever assembled in Carmel, numbers 80 all told. The staff of directors, technicians, scene painters include such men as Bernard Rowntree, lighting expert; Hazel Watrous, scenic design; Arthur Hill Gilbert, Leo Ross, H. F. Dickinson, Lita Bathen, Vern Hamlin, Gertrude Rendtorff, Ruth Thompson. The orchestra will be led by Fenton Foster.

It is safe to say the best traditions of the village as the home of classic drama will be lived up to—and surpassed—in our poet mayor's coming production. It will go down in history.

CANDIDATE FOR TAX COLLECTOR IS WELL KNOWN HERE

George W. Holm, candidate at the primaries on the 26th of the month for the office of county tax collector, has a particular interest for Carmel's voters, for two of his brothers are residents here. Through them, George Holm has become well acquainted here, and has made many friends who are working for him. He was born in Gonzales, but for a number of years has lived in Salinas, where he has held a position as a deputy in the sheriff's office.

Holm is qualified by education and experience for the office of tax collector. After completing his education in the public schools he took a two-year course in accounting and business practice, thoroughly equipping himself for accounting, bookkeeping and general office work. His experience includes a position as timekeeper for Miller & Lux, several years in business for himself, bookkeeper for Monterey County Farm Bureau and the Farm Bureau Exchange, as well as a term as deputy county auditor.

As deputy county auditor he became thoroughly acquainted with the preparation of the county's monthly reports and the treasurer's balance, showing the condition of all county funds. He also kept the school accounts and the accounts of all other departments of the county government and is familiar with the handling of county taxes. During his term as deputy sheriff, the responsibility of handling all civil work as well as keeping the books and accounts of the sheriff's office rested entirely upon him.

HIGHLANDSFILLING STATION IN COURTS

Whether the temporary injunction, which has stopped building of the filling station at Carmel Highlands, shall be made permanent or dissolved will be decided tomorrow by Judge Jorgensen in the superior court at Salinas. Judge F. B. Brown, acting in the absence of Judge Jorgensen, granted a temporary injunction last Thursday.

Suit was brought by a group of residents at the Highlands which included Mr. and Mrs. Theodore F. Criley, Theodore Achilles, Elizabeth Bigelow, Mr. and Mrs. S. F. Dutton, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Flavin, Mr. and Mrs. D. L. James, T. W. Ireland, Mr. and Mrs. D. T. MacDougal, Albert Hodgkins and Elsie Hodgkins, Harry Hodgkins, Henry Russell, Florence Silent, Emily Pitkin and Hugh Van Sweringen.

In presenting their case before the court the Highlands property owners stress the following complaints: that erection of the station would mar one of the foremost beauty spots of the west; that the gasoline station, located in proximity to high tension wires and in a section without fire protection, would be a fire menace; that presence of the station would further aggravate the present domestic water shortage at the Highlands; that water shortage would make the station unsanitary; that the station would depreciate property values in a section that is fundamentally residential; that the station, located at the intersection of two public and two private roads, would create a traffic menace; that the supervisors are now considering a zoning law expected to forbid gas stations at the Highlands; that the defendants were aware of this possibility and were seeking to erect the station before the law was passed.

In this connection, the laws passed in England for the supervision of filling stations are of interest. In an article in the Saturday Evening Post recently, Kenneth L. Roberts explains the Petroleum Consolidation Act, passed in 1928 by Parliament, and says:

The Home Office appointed a committee under Sir Lionel Earle to consider and report on the model form of by-laws to be used in controlling petrol filling stations, and the form that they recommended in May of 1929 was as follows:

(a) A general by-law prohibiting the occupier of any filling station in the area from allowing its appearance to affect injuriously the enjoyment by the public of any view of or from rural scenery, or of any place of beauty or historical interest, or any park or pleasure promenade, or any street or place which is of interest by reason of its picturesque character.

(b) A by-law imposing certain requirements as to appearance on all stations in the area. Stated briefly, these are:

No advertisements, except the filling station sign, the name of the proprietor and the premises—once only—and—on the pumps themselves or their incidental apparatus—letterings and trade-marks of different brands of fuel or oil, and guaranty disks of quality.

Uniform coloring at each station for all pumps and visible apparatus, except for bands of distinctive colors indicating the different brands.

No unsightly material in construction or roofing.

No galvanized or corrugated iron in any visible position on new stations. On existing stations it is to be painted.

Tidiness and order to be maintained in all stations and garages.

(c) A by-law requiring everyone, before establishing a new station or altering the appearance of an old one in the area, to give notice to the local authority, accompanied by plans showing what is proposed to be done, in particular as to walls, fences or screens, materials and colors.

(d) A by-law prohibiting altogether the establishment of visible filling stations in certain areas where they would be completely out of harmony with the surroundings.

Once these laws have been passed by any local authority, the fine for their contravention is a maximum of twenty pounds a day; and if a filling station is not removed from a prohibited area, after conviction, within the time allowed by the court, the local authorities may remove it themselves and recover the cost from the offender.

The cries of outraged Englishmen grow constantly louder, and day by day the efforts of England's hundreds of anti-ugliness societies arouse more and more Englishmen to an angry realization that they are being robbed of the rustic beauty which has always been a part of every Englishman's heritage. In October, 1929, there was held, in Manchester, England, a National Conference for the Preservation of the Countryside. It was attended by 340 delegates from more than 100 societies. At this conference the following resolution was moved by the president of the Council for the Preservation of Rural England, the Earl of Crawford and Balcarres, seconded by Mr. Moran, of the Scapa Society, and carried unanimously:

That in view of the grievous extent to which the aspect of our towns and countryside, which is one of the nation's greatest assets, is being disfigured by uncontrolled development, inharmonious building, unsightly roads, overhead electric-power transmission, outdoor advertisements, ill-designed petrol filling stations, litter, refuse dumps and indiscriminate tree felling, this conference calls upon local authorities to utilize to the full the powers which they already possess to deal with these abuses.

"They Had to See Paris," made into a Will Rogers talkie from Homer Croy's novel, created such a demand for the author in Hollywood, he finds it difficult to get away to be with his family in Carmel. Lowell's doggeral about "when Homer smote 'is bloomin' lyre" even the stones took on ears and listened, is true enough of Carmel's distinguished visitor when he tells of his travels and experiences.

It seems in Nice a certain Lord Russell invited him to dine at his suburban villa. Homer didn't happen to know that his host was the famous intimate of Oscar Wilde, and to some extent had shared the unhappy poet's fate. Our Homer found himself at the festive board next to Queen Marie of Roumania. Her other table companion happened to be Galsworthy, red and somewhat embarrassed. Apparently conversing with queens was not in his line. Gilbert Chesterton sitting next to Galsworthy, was conspicuously chuckling at his friend's discomfiture.

Queen Marie, seemingly unconscious of all this, was devoting herself passionately to a dish of pickles. The speed with which she made them disappear testified to her love for them. Across the table sat Frank Harris, entertaining the company from his inexhaustible mine of antidote, his booming voice drowning any attempt at competition. Something in the talk caused Homer to turn to his host and ask, innocently enough, "Did you know Oscar Wilde, Lord Russell?"

There was a deadly pause. Even Frank Harris gasped in the middle of a sentence and subsided. "I expected the house to fall," said Homer, "and wished it would—when Frank Harris boomed out, 'Gad, man, don't you know Lord Russell is the man who put Oscar Wilde over!' "

What is the fascination about garages? Most of our successful authors are writing in them. I'm going to fit up one myself, to see if it won't increase my royalties. James French Dorrance does his Ranch Romances in one. William McLeod Raine swears by his, and insists he is working unusually well in Carmel. Homer Croy has banished his car from its rightful home, and has fitted the place with a home-made table—that is, a huge bread board with four empty fruit boxes for legs. The compartments in the boxes serve as shelves for manuscripts and stationery. With the many rooms of a delightful summer home to choose from, he sits in a chair on a dirt floor in his garage writing his next novel!

Fred Bechdolt's next book soon to be published by the Century Company, is a true record of picturesque days in the West, when gun men and cowboys really had the adventures they are famous for. From excerpts I was privileged to hear, Fred's forthcoming volume will be of great value to libraries, and immensely interesting to the general reader. The material is first hand stuff. And facts tinted with Fred's sympathetic imagination penetrate deeper than ninety-nine per cent of our weak tea fiction.

Captain Save My Books!

William McLeod Raine's latest novel, "Rutledge Trails the Ace of Spades" is ideal vacation reading. Bill tells a story wonderfully well. Writing some half-hundred novels, all popular successes, has given him superb craftsmanship. The characters are human, and there's an underlying charm in these books that brings one back to them. No wonder Bill has a large public ever waiting his next volume. The wonder is that he can turn out three in a year and maintain the quality.

Bill's largest market is the British Empire. Book stalls throughout England and her colonies are placarded with his material. The enterprising publisher once shipped a half-million of Bill's novels to Australia, and sent the author over on the same boat. "I never was so anxious about a sea voyage in my life," confessed Bill. "Every cloud in the sky, every freshening breeze gave me an insufferable panic—"

"But I thought you were a good sailor," I remarked.

"Oh, I wasn't worried about myself," said the novelist. "I was thinking of all those books I was to get royalties on."

Charles Cooper, pianist, who is to give a recital in Carmel Playhouse Wednesday morning, has worked up a program, sufficiently varied to interest any musical taste. Hayden, Scarlotti figure in it. Chopin comes in for three numbers, a waltz, a nocturne and an etude. As a grand finale he is to do a liszt transcription of a Strauss waltz. David Alberto says Cooper is a marvelous pianist, and what David says about a pianist—(or anything else)—you can bank on.

Ford Tunes Up

Louis Levinson has two hobbies. One of them is Boy Scouts. As Louis puts it, every family should have two things. "One of them is a boy, and the other—well, the other should be a boy too." Asked if he could think of anything else the average family needed, Mr. Levinson considered a moment. "Well," he said at last, "it's my unbiased opinion that a family having two boys should also have two Fords—"

This week the Boy Scouts are not likely to see much of Louis, for he is celebrating the opening of his remodeled and enlarged salesrooms. "Everyone is invited," said Louis, "but we're not serving tea or giving away any flowers. We're not even providing music—"

"Why?" asked the reporter, in surprise.

"Because," said Mr. Levinson with a twinkle in his eye, "the Fords will supply their own music—they'e all tuned up—our guests will be taken over the hills for a joy ride."

Mrs. Mabel Young entertained at tea Sunday afternoon. Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bechdolt, Mrs. Robinson Jeffers, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cooper, Mr. and Mrs. David Alberto, Mr. and Mrs. Hal Garrott.

SHADOWS

How many villages—or even big cities now-a-days—may be called good show towns? Not many. Outside of the prevailing talkies, first class dramatic amusements, and even concerts and lectures are practically nonexistant in any but great metropolitan centers.

For its size, we believe Carmel to be the champion show town of the United States. Some record for a village of 2200 population to successfully support original revues such as Carmel Nights, such plays as The God of Gods, the children's fantasy, Julius Caesar at the Forest Theater, Edward Kuster's brilliant list of productions, a season of morning concerts by nationally famous virtuosi, lectures and musicales promoted by the Denny-Watrous Gallery, exhibitions in the Heron Art Gallery, and innumerable private showings of local artists' work! Our show-conscious public have responded so heartily, our impresarios, with admirable daring, are ever plotting "bigger and better" things!

The sort of play that succeeds in Carmel is not the usual New York success, or the type that happens to be the fad. Our follies must be original, written and composed by such gifted local men as Metz Durham, and with hits that are local. Our grand opera must be by an Edward Kuster, who translates the libretto and arranges the performance for an exclusive Carmel production. To do this he was obliged to buy up the American rights.

For serious drama we like Tchekov, Carroll Aikins, Shakespeare. For soloists, the Carmel Music Society wisely decides the village must have nothing less than internationally famous artists. In our midst we have the material to produce anything from comedy and tragedy to grand opera and follies. Talented amateurs and professionals are being attracted to the village because of the opportunities offered.

Such schools as Edward Kuster's Golden Bough Workshop of Play Producing, the Carmel Academy of Music and Fine Arts, Willette Allen's and Viola Parker's schools of interpretative dancing, and the private instruction of innumerable artists in all branches of the craft are training students for stage appearances. Fenton Foster is brilliantly conducting orchestra and chorus. Arts which have long been slumbering because of movie competition, are awakening in Carmel. It is the dawn of renaissance.

No wonder performers are eager to appear before sophisticated audiences including such Carmel residents as the Lincoln Steffens, Martin Flavins, Bechdolts, Hoppers, Jeffers, Blythes, Harry Leon Wilson, Homer Croy, William McLeod Raine, Frank Sheridan, Herbert Heron—indeed, to mention all of our national celebrities would be like compiling the city directory.

The faculties of Carmel schools include professionals whose reputations attract pupils from afar. For many reasons the village is an ideal spot for the pursuit of fine arts. Perhaps most important of all, one may enjoy the beauty with which Nature has so richly endowed this locality. Besides great masters, schools, stage performances and beauties of Nature, Carmel's artistic shops should be mentioned. Wood carving, weaving, the making of costume jewelry all flourish in the village. A world renowned photographer, Edward Weston, is but one of a number of outstanding creative artists who choose to reside here. Painters, poets, novelists, naturalists, composers, and cultured people generally find here the atmosphere they need.

No wonder Carmel goes marching on to an increasingly brilliant future. Someone has said every successful institution is the shadow of a personality. In our little village by the sea a score of creative souls are casting shadows—shadows that cross the continent and are flung far out to sea.

SEAFARERS

I said; I have cruised my last voyage,
I will anchor down;
Build me a house by the worn old road,
At the edge of the town.

The robins will dock in my cherry trees;
Red clover rankly grow,
A port for honey-hunting brown bees—
My hollyhocks, row on row.

You came, salt-crusted old man of the sea,
Breathing of myrrh and nard;
Bringing the tang of brine-beaten shores
Where life runs high and hard.

And seaward I sailed like the halcyon
To nest on a foam-flowered sea—
Through irised clouds of a far horizon
White dawn came up to me.

He hopes for greater circumstance; he dreams
Of El Dorado or a bright Yukon
Where gold is washed in ever-flowing streams.
A road where other vagabonds have gone
Leads him beyond the pillared hills of home,
A yard, a garden and a proper spouse;
A finger points to Xanadu or Nome,
Far from the thraldom of a narrow house.

He dreams and dreams... Headlong the seasons roll—
Summer and Winter, Autumn and the Spring,
And yet he is no nearer to his goal
Than when he first began his wandering.
No matter how he builds his castle walls,
The mortar crumbles and the glory falls.

THAIS

Your wanton name falls lute-soft from the tongue,
A glamor lies upon your ways of sin;
What dark moon shone on Athens in your young,
Unpatterned years . . . and left a spell within
The deep wells of your eyes? Hetæra yes,
Whose flesh was over radiant with flame
And which men, touching, languished to possess—
But did your beauty not absolve your shame?

A siren Queen ruled Egypt after you
Drank Love's Nepenthe with its Conqueror;
Fame, sorcery, and power you never knew,
A Caesar, Anthony, belonged to her . . .

Her page of life is redolent—and yet
Your scented yesterdays who shall forget?

WINDOWS OPEN TOWARD JERUSALEM

Daniel, Daniel, what did you dream,
Looking out toward Jerusalem?
Did you glimpse the dark death and the worldly scorn,
Or the royal robe and the diadem?

IT'S ABOUT TIME

From The Grove at High Tide

Carmel at one time had a summer festival of plays that was a real community undertaking and people came from miles around to see. It was one of the best things ever done by the little village over the hill that grows so much faster than any other and yet continues to protest against progress of all sorts.

Then came a big jumble. For awhile, we had plays going in three theaters, many conflicting dates. We had so much drama that even the Carmelites themselves were tired out. Naturally, all three theaters lost money. Then all of them closed down, with the beautiful Golden Bough being turned over to the "squawkies."

For months and months, there were no plays—and the public sensed a real loss. Finally, the solution came. There are now plays being given in two of the theaters, but extreme care is being taken to prevent conflict in dates or any semblance of competition. There is even exchange of personnel among the casts.

Monterey and Pacific Grove have been waiting for this sort of thing to take place. Local people admire the thing that Carmel does in the artistic realm. We on this side of the hill like to go to the plays, but for awhile, Carmel had us wondering which to attend and which playhouse to support. We much preferred to support them all, but such was impossible.

CONGRATULATIONS, MR. DURHAM

After all, though money isn't everything, there's considerable talking ability in the dollar. Twenty years of more or less artistry at the Forest Theater hasn't kept it out of the red. Eliott Durham's "Carmel Nights," which Durham never claimed that Shakespeare might have done if he'd thought of it, has financially cleared up back debts, and given the organization a neat surplus.

Nor did Carmel's intelligenzia remain disdainfully aloof. They were chuckling in the dollar and a half seats, and uproariously happy in the dollar seats. Someone in the publishing business discovered that the food for intellectual cousumption was the detective thriller and Metz Durham evolved the idea that Carmel's brainy ones would fall for the girl-show. They did; high-brows were smoothed from worry, and long hairs waved cheerfully in the Ziegfeld spirit of "Carmel Nights."

There will be some to say that it wasn't art. There will be some who will advance the argument that the stage was not elevated an inch by the Forest Theaters' latest offering. Durham, we do not doubt, will agree with them. But twenty years of careful study of the Forest Theater has failed to show us any perceptible lift in the altitude of the stage because of it. We have often suffered through such efforts to improve conditions of the drama, and watched the organization go deeper in the financial hole because of them.

Not that we shouldn't try, and keep on trying. The Forest Theater is there twelve months of the year, and nobody with an idea to put over need fear that it will not find backing. But once a year, at least, let's have a Metz Durham girl show, and all enjoy ourselves as we pile up the gate receipts.

OFFICIALLY BEGUN

On file for consideration by the city's advisory committee is a resolution that would combine the Point, Hatton Fields, Carmel Woods—all adjoining suburbs—with the city of Carmel-by-the-Sea. This brings the matter of annexation into official cognizance, and will begin ironing out the difficulties of consolidation.

It may be that these objections are less serious than they, at first glance, seem. The main one, that of difference in tax rates, has already disappeared with the promotion of fire protection districts. The assumption that that time has come when the environs must have some sort of fire-fighting organization and apparatus, automatically wipes out the differential in county taxes and city taxes.

With equal tax payments, the city has all the best of the argument, giving in addition to fire protection, police, sewers, library, and the restrictions of zoning. With the city limits line extended, ordinances protect the new territory. Zoning laws that safeguard Carmel would cover the places where now there is no restriction.

That the electors of these environs may have the power to vote for the city officials is a vital concern. The outlying districts are as deeply concerned in the government of Carmel as those within its limits. Carmel has recognized this jointure of interests by placing men and women living outside its borders upon the city's advisory committee, and the future planning of Carmel is partly in their hands. They should also have the ballot in order to make their work effective.

Carmel doesn't care to be bigger, or to have more population, in the sense of "bigness" as an advantage, but it does want all its neighboring people of like interests and the same trend of thought to be part of its electorate, having a say and a vote upon matters of importance. It is their Carmel too. Let them be part.

People Talked About

The Rev. David Evans, rector emeritus of All Saints church, Palo Alto, whom old-timers here will remember as the aboriginal with horn glasses in the 1913 production of "Fire" at the Forest Theater, is the author of the following "Thoughts on a Whale Skeleton."

Some ichthologists once found
Upon Point Lobos' fabled mound,
A lot of bones, which one by one,
They built into this skeleton
Of that famed fish, for all we know—
No one can prove it isn't so—
That, to his subsequent regret,
Took in poor Jonah from the wet,
And then, with wave of his fin dorsal,
Disgorged him, as too tough a morsel.

Let us, my friends, read, mark and learn
The lessons that we here discern;
It often happens a comestible
That looks all right is indigestible.

Hitch-hikers, cadging for a ride,
Beware, and give a berth that's wide.
This kind cetacean took in Jones,
The wind now whistles through his bones.

Former councilman George L. Wood, on his travels, mails back to us, with the terse comment, "Pretty well put—what say?" this editorial from Judge, "Another View of Bigness.'

As expected, the census returns show that the trend is still toward the city. Rural sections almost everywhere seem to have lost population or just about stood still, while urban centers show gains.

Curiously, most people think this is to the good. One of the most amusing side shows of the census was the anxiety of Los Angeles to get ahead of Cleveland and the dejection of the latter city over the idea of being shoved down into sixth place.

Bigness is the American fetish. The loudest and silliest of all our boasts is that of the size of our home town. It began in the pioneer days when boom towns made fortunes for those who staked them out. And the fervor of the real estate operator still inspires "civic spirit." Realtors are at the bottom of the propaganda for more physical growth and they were abetted by retail merchants, bankers, bootleggers, politicians, crooks, contractors, amusement purveyors and a few other classes who prosper by congestion. The rest of us are the customers, the digits in the statistical column, the suckers. To us more population simply means traffic more tangled, politics more insolent, crime more rampant, rents higher, food less fresh air, more polluted, noise more maddening, life more complicated.

Perry Dilley's puppet show for this season is getting praise on all sides for its attractive new program. Says the San Francisco Argonaut: "If one could find in the human actor a combination of the qualities of modesty, elegance, and grace that Perry Dilley's puppet possess among their many other virtues we feel sure the theater would be able to boast of a more devoted and less fickle public. Dilley's new program, which was played at Wheeler Hall last Wednesday afternoon, included two plays; the first, "The Tinked and the Tea-Kettle," is an adaption from a Buddhist fable and concerns the magic teakettle which turns into a badger. The second, "Pierrot's Wedding," is a translation from the French of Pauline Seraphin. It is another episode in the lives of those immortals —Pierrot, Columbine and Harlequin, with Cassander, Columbine's father, getting into a lot of trouble through the eating of an ostrich egg and the subsequent loss of his magic wig as a result.

"The puppets are beautifully designed by Perry Dilley and the manipulation and voices well synchronized by the two expert puppeteers Grace Wickham and Grace Sterns."

Grace Wickham, who has been for a number of years with the Perry Dilley show, is the daughter of Mrs. Grace Wickham, clerk in our postoffice, and of Harvey Wickham, the novelist. Grace was one of our leading women in Forest Theater productions, was a dancer of distinction, and wrote one of the children's plays put on at the open-air playhouse. She is Mrs. Madefrey Odhner off-stage.

"Science Points the Way to a New Philosophy," was the subject of the second of a series of three popular lectures delivered by Dr. Harry Allen Overstreet, head of the department of Philosophy of the College of the City of New York, Thursday night in the Extension Building auditorium, San Francisco.

"Recent changes in civilization and discoveries in the field of science are beginning to form a whole new world outlook," declares the philosopher, who is now conducting an experiment school in adult education at the University of California summer session.

An open forum was held after Dr Overstreet's lecture, led by Dr. Lyman Bryson, executive director of the California Association for Adult Education.

A veteran newspaperman visited Carmel Highlands and the peninsula this week and found it good. He is Samuel G. McClure of Glendale, president of Southern California Newspapers Associated.

It was the first visit of the newspaper man to this part of California. He says that he likes it.

McClure first stopped at Highlands Inn, and later moved to Del Monte and the golf course there. By now, it is expected, he is on his way along the Redwood Highway to the north.

McClure is listed in Who's Who as a man who started in newspapers in 1887 and has been with them ever since. His first job was with the Cleveland "Dealer," now the "Plain Dealer," as exchange editor. Later he became manager of the Ohio State Journal and still later bought a daily in Youngstown. He came to California several years ago.

An exceptional honor has come to Preston W. Search, resident of Carmel. Identified as student and "college poet" with college life some three score years ago, he became a member of the Phi Delta Theta in 1872, and later (1874) was editor of that fraternity's first official song book, which has passed through seven subsequent editions and still contains many of his songs. The "History of Phi Delta," an exhaustive work of 900 pages, says (page 337) that "Search is the greatest song writer the fraternity ever had." The national committee, discovering that its pioneer member is still living, has been insisting, for over a year, that he should come east this fall, "as the one man of honor" and as "Honorary Choragus," for its national convention to be held the first week of September. This convention, of five hundred delegates and guests, and representing practically all the universities and colleges of the entire country, is to assemble at Detroit. The sessions are to be held on the large steamer, "Eastern States," chartered specially for the five days, and which is to make the run of the Great Lakes, including the Sioux and Superior, with only stop at Makinac Island, where at the Grand Hotel the convention banquet is scehduled. On this occasion the distinguishing feature of honor is to be the convention poem, written and presented by our Carmel resident, who carries the special titles of "Honorary Choragus" and "Golden Legionnaire," than which is nothing greater in the fraternity's entablature. Preston W. Search, who became a member of Phi Delta Theta in 1872, was also its convention poet in 1878. At this present gathering he is expected in addition to offering his honorary poem, to lead in the singing of "A Thousand Years of Phi Delta Theta," a song he wrote for and conducted at the fraternity's national convention, held in connection with the Philadelphia Centennial Exposition in 1876.

This invitation, accepted only after months of consideration, and now announced for the first time, is a most remarkable tribute from virile Young America to an older man whose life work has been identified with so many educational institutions! In view of this fact, the speaker will seek to make this contribution voice the "Message of an Older Man to the Younger Life of Today."

Phi Delta Theta, ranking as the largest fraternity enrolls in its membership many of Americans most distinguished sons, including Governor C. C. Young and Chief Justice Waste of California, Naval Astronomer T. F. J. See of Mare Island, Editor E. A. Dickinson of the Los Angeles Express, Editor William Allen White, Vernon Kellogg, and others.

The Literary Digest, in the issue of August 2, joins the Pine Cone in a search for a poet. Some months ago, we ran a rather striking poem, "Proposition," which had come to us in a mysterious way. It was typewritten, and its author's name was given as Peggy Palmer.

A bit of investigation proved that Peggy Palmer had not written "Proposition," and knew nothing of it, so the Pine Cone ran the poem with an explanatory note, calling for information as to its authorship. The Literary Digest runs the poem, together with our note, and there seems a chance that the additional publicity— the Literary Digest has a larger circulation than the Pine Cone by several millions— may uncover the shrinking genius.

When Alec B. Francis of screen fame takes a holiday, he doesn't believe in playing the postman and walking about the same old beat of his daily routine. He packs his bags and gets out of Hollywood, free to forget directors and cameras and work.

For the past week he has been staying at Carmel Highlands Inn with Mrs. Francis, making the most of a brief pause between pictures. Because he has created a distinct screen personality, Francis is in steady demand on the lots of moviedom, and has been for the past 20 years.

The white-haired actor, who not long ago filled an important role in "Evangeline" when that film was made on Point Lobos, left the Highlands last Tuesday morning, headed south. But he went away only to leave the impression that he will be back again. In previous trips to Carmel and the Highlands he has found this part of California one of the delightful spots of the west, where any man, even a screen actor, may loaf free from annoyance.

Stage and screen have taken 43 years of Francis' busy life. After 23 years on the stage the veteran entered pictures, believing that in the feeble screen infant lay something of great possibilities. Thus Francis became one of the vanguard of films, and is today one of the few who have seen and taken part in the long rise of the screen and is today as active a part in that development as ever.

The Sleep Disturbers

The best month in the history of the local chapter. The Carmel Rookery of The National Society of Sleep Disturbers is delighted to state that it has enjoyed a splendid four weeks. Telegrams are pouring in from throughout the country from other Rookeries that were competing in the nation-wide contest known as The July Jitters.

At least two members here were on duty at all hours during the month. This was certified to by neighbors. In getting accurate record through backyard chatter and police court rumbles it is possible to have a notarized report to send to National Headquarters and do away with unfortunate bickerings and bitings among contestants.

Seldom has Carmel been more favored during any summer with its visitors. No need to ask them for signed statements. They speak right out, no matter what the hour, and unhesitatingly put themselves on public record.

A word about the quaint inter-Society custom of keeping its own members awake. Most effective has been found the method of stealing mattresses from members' cots, or bribing the phone operator to ring every ten minutes and enquire as to general health. Again, it is to park some sorry and inert body on the bed thus make floor-sleeping the only recourse left.

Hail to this ancient and benevolent Society. Yes—and farewell.

Heroes Hold The Line

At risk of making this broadcast too athletic, we are going to recount briefly the final game of the P. G. and E. civil war. Carmel won—but the highlights of this sanguine affair must be touched on.

After a tremendous battle through six innings, Carmel found itself going into the final frame three runs behind So everybody pulled the belt up to the last notch and gritted the dentistry to the last inlay. To win for dear old Carmel!

though Captain Merbs at first, smack! went the hits right

Came the break. Ah—smack! hits that sped like minnie balls. Owatta Knight, rampant center fielder of Carmel, gave his best when he hit one of those, and it seems that Sam Monroe did likewise. Dust finally settled with Monroe perched on second, the winning run perching with him. Could his fighting heart carry him through?

Wham! Some superman socked the apple for a single. Sam with a do-or-die stamped on his pale face, picked up the feet and started places. At third he took the corner without a whit reduction of speed. Here came the ball. Here came Sam. Crash! Sam had slid. Sam has smashed into the catcher. Sam is safe!

And thus George Dewey Sund's Carmel Crushers overcame Merb's Monterey Murderers. Mayor Heron gives out the souvenirs to our own conquerors at five-thirty tonight in the city hall on Block 67.

The Abalone Girl's Team

Last week we promised that if you were good we would tell you the story of the Girls And The Gas House Riot. Sit down like a nice little gentleman and we will begin right this minute.

Once upon a time the Monterey High School Girls' Baseball Team invited Carmel's Own Abalone League Girls to come over and play 'em a game of indoor ball at the Ball Park. At that time the Abalones were young and strong and given to beating their chests (the men Abalones, I mean) and shouting, "You name the game and we'll win it." And we used to do just that, come they from the four corners and we'll shock them.

So we got the girls together and ran them through their paces on the home diamond and that afternoon went over the Hill for the fray. As we went, one of us saw the entire Monterey police force riding out of town to a raid, and we should have gone back home then and there. But we kept on, and pretty soon the Ball Park was resounding with cries af battle. And how our girls played!

Now, it seems that this particular afternoon was sacred to the gas house gangsters, only we got there fifteen minutes before they finished work. Naturally we had possession of the choicest part of the diamond, and they had sets of dishes when they found their own playground stolen under their noses. We just laughed and told 'em to run along and play out in the corner by the fence. So all forty of them did it, but you could see there was no love lost. There was a wild look in those eyes.

All of a sudden, just as the High School pitcher had walked her ninth batter in succession, a baseball came bounding across

1¢ a meal — to cook with electricity

And the electric range costs no more than any good range

Electric cooking has an aristocratic "atmosphere."

However, fine "atmosphere" should not mislead any one from true dollar-and-cents facts. Here they are:

You can cook a complete meal for four people with 4c worth of electricity. In addition, the price of an electric range itself is no more than any good range.

And how the electric range improves cooking! — and gives you more time for out-of-the-kitchen activities. For electric cooking can be entirely automatic. After a meal is placed in the oven, you never have to watch it — or baste the meat. Moreover, the electric range is the "keynote" for a beautiful, clean kitchen.

Today's electric range has Improved Cooking Elements, 29 to 50% speedier. Fully enameled Rust-Proof Oven. Smokeless Broiler Pan. Smooth Porcelain Enamel which wipes clean easily. Cooker Pot. Automatic Oven Temperature Control, and a Special Time Clock for automatically turning the oven current on and off while you're away.

Come into our office or a dealer's store and see the fine new electric ranges. And remember, modern electric cooking IS economical.

our vision, batted accidentally from the raggle-taggle game of the Big Boys. We threw the ball back. A moment later it they were edging in closer all the time. What ho! Next arcame again, and we noticed that rival of the ball and Umpire James Hopper threw it far in the opposite direction from the Gas Housers. Roars. Unkind words. Well, sir, the ball came in once again.

Charles Van Riper grabbed that ball and slung it full force —which is considerable—back at the savages by the fence. He hit one right on the shin.

"Ow!" yelled the victim. "Fellers, he's broke my leg!"

In two shakes of a wildcat's tail all the Gas Housers were coming toward us in a flying wedge, with the injured man in the lead. Up to meet them surged the Abalone Gorillas. Boy, it looked stormy, and not a cop in sight or sound.

The enemy had bats. Us—we didn't have until one gentle lady on our side ran up with a whole armful and what a help that was. We met Van Riper in the lead. Mutters—heavy breathing —glares. Three seconds and it would have been bats at one pace and no quarter.

Then Jimmie Hopper, the veteran of six foreign wars, dived between the contact men and stood like Sampson ready to shove the temple pillars apart, one hand on each rival bosom. "Wait!" he was crying. "What is this all about?"

The effect was magical. What was it all about? Naughty boys had their ball stolen, and snooty Abalones were to blame. Well, what a swell thing to riot over, and four minutes later a whole flock of doves had come to roost and coo among the combatants. Yes, and we even asked them to be in the pictures with us, the ones we sent to the Police Gazette.

Friends for life, but Jimmie Hopper, Peacemaker, later said he was never in a tougher spot in his whole career as battle correspondent. Mainly because Jimmie wanted with all his heart to grab a bat and bust it over the nearest head. If he couldn't do it, he wouldn't let anybody else, and of such stuff are pacifists constructed.

GAY DAYS OF 1890 AT HOTEL DEL MONTE

Members of the Hotel Del Monte staff are busy these days scurrying about California in search of ancient tally-hos, 6-seated bicycles and high wheelers and other adjuncts of the "Roaring 80's" and "Gay 90's" for Del Monte is getting ready for a great Golden Jubilee Celebration August 21-24, which will include special events such as "Fifty Years After" Gala Night, Saturday, August 23 — special tennis matches, swimming exhibitions and a Golden Jubilee golf tournament.

In 1880 when a tandem bicycle was the sportiest two-seaterof the day—and a dance was a formal "hop"—when hotels were called "caravanseries—and Mid-Victorian architecture, with cupolas and lacy decorations was the thing—and "hacks" were in vogue—and "bustles" were the style—even then Del Monte was the "select watering place" and last word in "elegant domiciles."

Rehearsals start this week for the "Fifty Years After" show, Saturday evening, August 23, which will be a rollicking resume of "the good old days." Its program will include a chorus of Floradora beauties, "A Bicycle Built for Six," "A Revue of 1880 bathing beauties," "Chicago, Then and Now," and many other choice episodes of the Mauve decade.

GUEST ARTISTS IN SAN FRANCISCO OPERA

The San Francisco Opera Company's Eighth Annual Season schedules twelve performances in Civic Auditorium, San Francisco, September 11 to September 27.

Operas in German will be Salome, Tannhauser, and Haensel and Gretel; in French, Manon, A Naughty Boy's Dream (L'Enfant et los Sortiloges), Mignon, and Faust; and in Italian, La Traviata, The Girl of the Golden West, La Boheme, Cavalleria Rusticana, Pagliacci, and Lucia di Lammermoor.

The Guest Artists are Clare Clairbert, Hope Hampton, Marie Jeritza, Dorotha Manski, Queena Mario, Elinor Marlo, Louis D'Angelo, Benianino Gigli, Frederick Jagel, Ludovico Oliviero, Giordino Paltriniori, Millo Picco, Ezio Pinza, Sidney Reyner, Eugenio Sandrini, John Charles Thomas, and Gaetano Viviani. Three talented San Franciscans will have important roles in a number of the operas, Eva Gruninger Atkinson, Audrey Farncroft, and Andre Ferrior.

Mail reservations are now being filled through the offices of the opera company at 153Kearney Street, San Francisco.

NEWS OF THE CHURCHES

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"Spirit" will be the subject of the Lesson-Sermon Sunday in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, branches of the Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

The citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon will include the following from the Bible: "God is a Spirit: and they that worship him must worship him in spirit and in truth" (John 4:24).

The Lesson-Sermon also will include the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "We worship spiritually, only as we cease to worship materially, Spiritual devoutness is the soul of Christianity. Worshipping through the medlum of matter is paganism . . . 'The true worshippers shall worship the Father in spirit and in truth'" (p. 140).

COMMUNITY CHURCH

Like the beautiful sunshine of recent days, does Community Church bid the sojourner welcome to its services of worship. Stressing beauty, and blending beauty with warmth in an individualistic way suitable to Carmel, this church perhaps stands alone in its uniqueness. In addition to the above characteristic, the note of experimental unity is particularly interesting. Many ideas of belief here worship harmoniously together. "We think and let think" is at least a reasonable welcome for all. Sunday next the Order for Divine Worship will be as follows:

Organ Prelude: "Would God I were a Tender Apple Blossom." (By request.)

Hymn of Praise by Congregation.

Recitation of the Creed of the Apostles.

Pastoral Prayer and the Our Father.

Reading from the Psalter and Responses.

The Gloria Patri.

New Testament Lesson.

Ministry of Music: Peter Ilyitch Tschaikowsky, and a recording of his pathetic "Elegie" by the Philadelphia String Simfonietta.

Worship in Offering. Music will be antiphonal.

Sermon: "Suggestions about the Mystery of Pain."

Closing Hymn of Devotion.

Benediction and Doxology.

ALL SAINTS CHURCH

Sunday, August 10, 1930.

"AS A MAN THINKETH IN HIS HEART, SO IS HE"

READING TIME 2½ MINUTES

It is the natural inclination of all housewives, before buying necessaries of life, to go window-shopping and endeavor to save for the protection of their family. It is the law of self-preservation that makes the housewife disregard "who is the merchant" and concentrate upon the quality of the wares and the bargain that she expects to get.

It is this natural desire of self-preservation of my constituents that I am appealing, particularly to the housewives and mothers.

To the wives and mothers, because it is they who carry the largest load of the family's difficulties.

To the mothers, because it is they who are the emblem of the family's honor, and who are ever ready to sacrifice their own life for the protection of their loved ones, eminently exemplified by their sympathetic, kind and merciful disposition.

Few people understand the importance of a Justice Court.

Some believe that a justice court is simply another political job insignificant in itself; others believe that it is a house of Inquisition; and still others believe that it is the most important court in the California Jurisprudence.

The reason of my appealing to the housewives and mothers is that "It is in the Justice Court that most of the family's difficulties are disputed. It is in the same court that the honor of a family may be destroyed by an erroneous sentence. It is there that a mother is compelled to sacrifice if the error of one of her loved ones is not properly and sympathetically adjudged."

Justice Courts are courts of limited jurisdiction, having jurisdiction only over litigations the demands of which do not exceed three hundred dollars; and over minor misdemeanors. Minor misdemeanors are punishable by fine or jail or both.

In the administration of justice the discretion of the Justice of the Peace is almost unlimited, it is unlike that of the Superior Court Judge, the latter being bound by sound precedents.

Therefore, I believe that a Justice of the Peace should be a friend of the people, and protect the rights of an accused person.

I believe that when the head of a family is punished for the violation of a public right, consideration should be given to his wife and children so as not to compel them to suffer for the mistake of the husband and father.

If one is ill he calls a physician to diagnose his case, he does not call a merchant.

Therefore, a Justice of the Peace should be one who is versed in law. He should be one who, when all the facts of a case are presented to him, should be able to determine the rights of the parties without seeking advice from a third person to decide the case. This practice most invariably results in miscarriage of justice.

What chance has a workman who has no money to retain an attorney to defend his rights, when faced by the attorney for the plaintiff, and a justice of the peace who does not know the law?

In appealing to the voters for their support I promise, if elected, that I will serve everybody alike, that I never will injure one for the benefit of another.

That I will give a special consideration to minors, and that I never will be a party to making a young man a criminal by sending him to jail for the first time, save in exceptional cases.

Being a married man with five children ranging from nine months to eighteen years of age, I believe I understand family responsibilities and difficulties. This with my eight years of legal study I believe renders me well qualified for the office of Justice of the Peace.

Yours for Justice of the Peace,

JOSEPH PIETROBONO.

THIS AND THAT, FROM HERE AND THERE, NOW AND THEN

The Penn Publishing Company of Philadelphia has a $5,000 prize contest for plays now open, closing December 31, 1930. The winners will be announced March 31, 1931.

The plays must be suitable for amateur production, three acts long, and time of playing not less than two nor more than three hours. Comedies, melodramas or serious plays are eligible, but no tragedies.

The costuming and stage setting should be simple. The plots of the plays should be strong enough to hold the attention of an audience with only indifferent acting. They must be free from any objectionable features such as profanity, drinking or sex.

Complete descriptions of scene plots, costumes, properties, as well as a brief synopsis of the play should be included as preliminary matter in the manuscript.

On prize-winning plays, all professional rights are retained by the author.

Satisfactory manuscripts not receiving a prize will be purchased by us at prices to be agreed upon between ourselves and the author.

All manuscripts are to be neatly typewritten, unbound and shipped in a box or strongly wrapped package. A stamped self-addressed envelope should be sent for the return of unavailable manuscripts.

The prizes will be a first of $2,500, second of $1,000, third of $750, fourth of $500 and fifth of $250.

Seasonal danger of poisoning from mussels and clams has caused an immediate quarantine extending from Monterey county to Del Norte county, exclusive of San Francisco bay shore.

This announcement comes from S. F. Butler of Salinas, Monterey county sanitary inspector.

Health officers and food inspectors have been instructed by Walter M. Dickie, state director of public health, to enforce the quarantine and prohibit sale of mussels and clams in the affected district. The quarantine will be lifted as soon as mussels and clams are regarded as safe for eating.

Deer seen everywhere! This is the substance of reports coming to the San Francisco office of the Division of Fish and Game from all sections of the state.

Division deputies declare that all indications point to one of the greatest deer hunting seasons that California has experienced in years. Besides being plentiful, the animals are well distributed throughout the mountains.

Due to the rigid enforcement of our game laws, deer "poachers" have been scarce in this state during the past several years and this, in a way, accounts for the number of fine, healthy animals on the ranges, it is said. Reports have come into the division from time to time of law violations in various remote districts but prompt action on the part of field men quickly eliminated the nuisance.

Deer are so plentiful this season many farmers have complained that the animals are doing much damage in the orchards and hay fields. However, the division has detailed experts to go into the field for the purpose of studying this problem with the idea of discovering a suitable remedy without destroying these valuable game animals.

With reasonable, intelligent hunting during the proper season, the deer population of the state can be maintianed at a suitable figure, division officials declare.

Zane Grey, noted author of western stories, has been charged with plagiarism in a half million dollar damage suit filed in Federal court.

The action, brought by Charles A. Maddux, pioneer westerner, contended that Grey's "Thundering Herd" was pirated from the novel "The Border and the Buffalo," written in 1907.

The rights to "The Border and the Buffalo" were assigned to Maddux by the widow of the author, John R. Cook, it was said.

Announcing a valuable service to motorists in the free distribution of specially compiled and copyrighted road maps for the entire western area, the Associated Oil company has provided all red, green and cream colored garages and service stations with a new series nowhere else duplicated for their completeness and compactness.

The maps are in three parts to cover the western territory. The first of the series covers all of California; the next, Idaho, Utah and Nevada; and the third, Washington and Oregon.

When folded the maps become 9 inches by 4 inches in size, and consequently are easily carried in either the coat pocket or the side pockets of the car. Printed on a good quality of heavy map paper, they will resist both creasing and wear.

OIL PAINT IN WASHES IS SEIDENECK SHOW

The exhibit now on at the Carmel Art Gallery in the Seven Arts building holds a particular interest for lovers of painting for a new medium has been used. Catherine Seideneck, using oils in washes, as one does water colors, has some thirty or more paintings that are remarkable in method, and beautiful in themselves.

Mrs. Seideneck has always been one of the most interesting of Carmel's artists, and her oils have featured most of the organization exhibits here. She brought back from Europe not only a number of important paintings, a mass of sketches, but a distinctive technique of a rare decorative quality, and a fine knowledge of color. Now she has developed a new method of using oil paints in transparent washes on paper, and the result must be seen to get any idea of its effectiveness and beauty. The exhibition will be on all this week and next.

BUHLIG IN RECITAL

On two Tuesday evenings, August 19 and August 26 Richard Buhlig will give piano recitals in the Denny-Watrous Gallery. The first evening will be devoted to "Polophony of the Eighteenth and Twentieth Centuries," the second to "Sonata, Song, and Dance," and works of Bach, Krenek, Schoenberg, Scriabine, Chavez, Schubert, and Beethoven will illustrate the line of progress.

FOREST THEATER HAS BRIGHT PROSPECTS

This much seems to be clear. A new box office record has been set for the Forest Theater.

Such, at any rate, were predictions going the rounds prior to a definite announcement of gross and net receipts by directors of the Forest Theater association.

Early this week the guess was hazarded that net proceeds of Metz Durham's song and dance act would total $1,000—way above the actual gain of any other show ever staged in the open-air playhouse.

Reports had it that the gross receipts stood in the neighborhood of $1,700. Bills that had not yet come in were roughtly put at $700.

This figure, added to the small but definite profit made by "The God of Gods," has already given the Forest Theater a rosy summer season.

Judging from the expressions on the faces of the directors at the beginning of the season, this surplus will be most welcome. For many years, it is reported, needed repairs and additions have been set aside on account of the lack of funds with which to do the work. There has seldom been enough to meet current expenses but now it is hoped that a new floor can be laid on the stage, the dressing rooms improved and, perhaps a storage place built for the scenery and props. When the necessary repairs and improvements are completed it is not likely that there will be much left of the surplus.

There still remains "Julius Casear," which Herbert Heron will stage later this month. That play, representing an old ambition of the poet-mayor of Carmel, is expected to be a fitting climax to the summer for the Forest Theater.

The success of "Carmel Nights," which ended its three day run last Saturday, is attributed to a good volume of ballyhoo prior to the opening night, to the appeal of a community musical comedy and to the excellence of its direction by Durham and presentation by the cast.

GEORGE R. MOORE, and also all other persons unknown, claiming any right, title, estate, lien or interest in the real property described in the Complaint, adverse to Plaintiff's ownership or any cloud upon Plaintiff's title thereto,
DEFENDANTS.

ALIAS SUMMONS

Action brought in the Superior Court of the State of California, in and for the County of Monterey, and Complaint filed in the Office of the clerk of said Monterey County.

THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA SEND GREETINGS TO GEORGE R. MOORE, and also all other persons unknown, claiming any right, title, estate, lien of interest in the real property described in the Complaint adverse to Plaintiffs' ownership, or any cloud upon Plaintiffs' title thereto.
DEFENDANTS.

You are hereby directed to appear and answer the Complaint in an action entitled as above brought against you in the Superior Court of the State of California, in and for the County of Monterey, within Ten (10) days after service upon you of this ALIAS SUMMONS, if served within this County; or within Thirty (30) days if served elsewhere.

And you are hereby notified that unless you so appear and answer as above required, the said Plaintiffs will take judgment against you for any money or damages demanded in the Complaint as arising upon Contract, or will apply to the Court for any other relief demanded inthe Complaint.

The object of this action is to require said Defendants, and each of them, known or unknown, claiming any right, title, estate, lien or interest in the real property described in the Complaint on file in this cause, and hereinafter described, adverse to Plaintiffs' ownership thereto, to set forth the nature of their, and each of their, claims, and that all adverse claims of said Defendants, and each of them, may be determined by a Decree of this Court.

That by said decree, it may be adjudged and decreed that the Plaintiffs are the owners in fee simple absolute of all the said real property, and that their title is good and valid and that said defendants have not, nor have they, or any of them, any estate, right, title, lien of interest in or to said real property, or any part thereof.

And that it be further adjudged and decreed that said Defendant GEORGE R. MOORE, and also all other persons unknown claiming any right, title, estate, lien or interest in the said real property described in said Complaint adverse to Plaintiffs' ownership, or any cloud upon Plaintiffs' title thereto, be forever debarred and estopped from asserting such or any claims in or to such real property, or any part thereof.

All of which is more fully set forth in the Complaint to which reference is hereby specially made.

Plaintiffs pray for such other or further relief as to this Court may seem meet and proper.

The real property affected by this action consists of All those certain lots, pieces or parcels of land, lying, being and situate in the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea, County of Monterey, State of California, described as follows, to-wit:

Lots One (1), Three (3), Four (4), Five (5), and Six (6) in Block Seventeen (17) as shown and delineated on the "Map of Carmel-by-the-Sea, County of Monterey, State of California, filed March 7, 1902 in the office of the County Recorder of the County of Monterey, California, and now on file and of record in said Office in Map Book One, Cities and Towns at page 2, therein.

Together with all and singular tenements, heriditaments and appurtenances thereunto belonging, or in any way appertaining.

Given under my hand and the seal of the Superior Court of the State of California, in and for the County of Monterey, this 25th day of April, 1930.
(SEAL OF SUPERIOR COURT) C. F. JOY, Clerk.
